

KANSANS AFTER JOB HOOK HELD

Strong Pressure Will Be Brought by Kansas Legislators

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Strong pressure will be brought to bear, it was made known in official circles today, to have a Kansas appointed as federal judge in the Fourth judicial circuit by the death of Judge William C. Hook of Leavenworth.

Always two names are being mentioned as candidates for the judgeship, Judge John W. Fellows of the United States district court of Kansas and Representative Edward G. Little of Kansas City, Kan.

Judge Phillips, it is freely conceded, would prove a serious contender should he allow his name to be entered as a candidate for elevation to the circuit bench. Members of the house committee on re-appointment of judges, however, have indicated that they will endorse Representative Little for the judgeship if he will permit it. The Kansas congressman today declined to discuss the matter, stating that he would make his position known later.

In the meantime, congressmen from other states among the 12 included in the Eighth judicial district, are making no concessions that the vacancy should be filled from Kansas and are preparing to bring out the names of several other candidates. Oklahoma representatives already let it be known they would support Judge Phillips. In Missouri, however, it is thought that he should seek the appointment.

From Operatic Stage to Film Stardom—Spectacular Career of Franklyn Farnum, Who is to Be Seen here in "THE LAST CHANCE"

Franklyn Farnum, who is looked upon by many as America's most prominent exponent of the strenuous life in the movies, has been secured by the management of the Lyric theater in his latest picture, "The Last Chance," for a two-day engagement, beginning tomorrow at that popular playhouse.

It may surprise many admirers of Mr. Farnum to know that before he entered the movies he had won an enviable position among the light operatic singers of the American stage. Among many of the now famous pieces in which Mr. Farnum scored success on Broadway, we may mention "Spring Maid," the famous revivals of "Pinafore" and "Mikado," and later put in several seasons with such players as De Wolf Hopper and Frank Wilson. It was on the earnest solicitation of Colonel William M. Selig, one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry, that Mr. Farnum gave up the footlights for the much larger field of motion pictures. "The Last Chance," the production which brings Mr. Farnum to the screen of the Lyric theater, is considered by the press and public along Broadway to be by far the finest piece of work that he has yet done in the silent drama. ### Gone! the Savings of a Lifetime

HE kept his savings in a trunk at his boarding house and prided himself in the little store of gold and greenbacks that was slowly mounting up and up to a large sum, for it represented the savings of a lifetime. Then one night, while he was out of town, came the fire—swift, merciless, cunning, and completely destroyed the boarding house, his trunk and his money.

A few days later he stood helplessly amid the ruins and realized that he had been a fool. Had he deposited his money in the Tulsa Building & Loan Association he would have received from 6 to 9 1/4 per cent interest—his money would have been tax-free and he would have helped others because it would have been invested in Tulsa homes under the supervision of the Oklahoma State Banking Department.

Moral—Put your money with Tulsa's Oldest and Largest Building and Loan Association, where it is tax free, is never idle and earning a good profit for you.
